He certainly deserves the consideration of gentlemen We admire men honest in their opinions, the expression of them. To the right of tne Chairman sat a jovial looking faced fellow, very voluble, and as plausible as he was talkative. His position was a ludicproximity to his haunches, both arms akimbo, the right holding a rusty knife with its blade turned towards the upper incisors. He was all attention! At his feet sat a mute, a grizzly bear of a man with a low, retreating forehead, and long hair which resembled spoiled tow. A bluetions, and the display they made, especially up over a muddy pair of brogans, no vest, no suspenders, a flannel shirt open at the neck and in front, set off his appearance. He never spoke but when asked. His invariable reply was that he was ignorant, that he would vote the way the others vote! Next to him is the King of men, and King of topers. A gentleman said he looked like an orangoutang; to me, a good judge of bad whiskey-the odor whereof reached many disinterested nostrils. He was a lazy looking man, not much exercised in thought, but much in cups, and red-hot drinking, a vapid soul, and hiceoughs .-The circæan cup had almost made him wholly a beast-withered cheeks. Seldom has any event cast a greater gloom over this community, and seldom has any community suffered a severer loss. Ardent in her impulses devoted in her attachments, generous and unsophisticated in her nature, bright as the sunbeam, joycus as the note of the lark at noon, and pure ciety, and the dear ones at home, the very light of their eyes, and the joy of their hearts. It is difficult to realize that one whom we so lately saw full of life and gladness, mingling in the feative throng, and rejoicing "in the very ecstacy of being," should so soon be snatched away from the scenes of earth forever. And when we gazed upon her, lying peacefully upon the couch of death, and bered; and that when her sweet dream was ended she would awake to gladden us one more Alas! vain thought ! But though forever lost to us here, let us console ourselves with the certain belief that she has been called to the life of eternal blies, in that better land, where sickness and suff-ring are unknown, and where death dure not enter. "Early, bright, transient, chaste as morning dew, She sparkled, was exhaled, and went to Heaven.'
